Costs—An "average" estimate may not fit every business, situation, production process or timing choice. Research, surveys, calls, judgment, records, data collection, experience, intuition, common sense, and carefully-picked responses (including your own) are all critical to the cost assessment. Every estimate and prediction has a margin of error, so profile and check your choices as you go along. Every day. The STP and TSPs help better organize and understand that "margin" and the factors that create it. And that's a very valuable lesson.
